MEDIATION AND ARBITRATION

Mediation is a voluntary process of conflict management based on the dialogue between the parties and aimed at finding joint solutions to their differences and intending, if possible, to reach agreement, that the agreement be reached and, why not ?, Improve their relationship.

The mediation process relies on the intervention of a mediator or co-mediators, a professional, impartial and neutral expert, who directs this process, limiting himself to facilitating and leading the parties in this extrajudicial dispute resolution path.

Mediation may be initiated prior to the filing of judicial proceedings by one or both parties, but may also take place once the judicial process has already begun.

Our firm is made up of lawyers, economists and experts in industrial relations and insolvency law, and, as duly qualified mediators, can help you from different perspectives:
you can request our professional services as mediators, both nationally and internationally, we can act as your legal representatives in a mediation process or, as advisers accompanying and advising you throughout the process. Notwithstanding that, before initiating a process of mediation, we can advise you on the convenience of the way to go: judicial, negotiation or mediation.

We firmly believe that although mediation is an issue that at the moment still has little implementation in Spain, it is being more and more known. Especially for companies, it is an alternative process for conflict solution, which we should not just reject; since it is, without a doubt, more agile, effective and economic than the judicial way, and no less important; also, it keeps complete confidentiality.

Services we offer:

- We act as mediators in all areas.
